

53 years old multiparous patient presented with acute serious abdominal pain and mental confusion. Upon examination a huge solid mass filling the entire abdomen was observed. Laparotomy was decided, during the operation uterus was observed as a giant torsioned solid mass. Abdominal hysterectomy was performed and after pathological examination was also in favor of torsion, patient was discharged without any complications.

Figure 1. Size comparison

Figure 2. Uterus detorsioned for hysterectomy